

WEEK 11

Having Deep Conversation

This document is intended to provide you with some key references and resources related to the theme of the week. They also indicate the nature of content to be discussed, and explored during the week, particularly while working on your project.

■ Key Resources (ensure you familiarize yourself with the topic before seminar and tutorial)

- Webster, R. & Marshall, G. (2019) The #TalkingClimate Handbook. How to have conversations about climate change in your daily life. Oxford: Climate Outreach [\[Link\]](#)
- Colvin, Bec. Moving climate change beyond politics (2020). TED Talk [\[Link\]](#)

■ Think about these questions

- What is a deep conversation? And how it can influence the success of projects we're working on?
- What makes conversation critical in shaping your professional identity?
- In a conflict situation, how can we make conversations easier and more meaningful – in order to come out of them feeling inspired and connected?

■ Supplementary Resources

- Kaptein, M., & Van Tulder, R. (2017). Toward effective stakeholder dialogue. [\[Link\]](#)
- Crane, A., & Livesey, S. M. (2003). Are you talking to me? Stakeholder communication and the risks and rewards of dialogue. Stakeholder communication and the risks and rewards of dialogue. [\[Link\]](#)
- Holmqvist, J. (2015). Conversation in Engineering Teams-Turning experiences into actions (Doctoral dissertation, Luleå tekniska universitet). [\[Link\]](#)
- Vaz, Ronsley (2017). The perfect recipe for a deep conversation. TED Talk [\[Link\]](#)